Landers08 Date: Dec 19, 2009.I am 26 weeks pregnant and at the hospital on bedrest because i have no cervixs and dilated 1cm so i am here until 34 weeks atleast or until the baby is born whichever comes first hoping the 34 weeks come first even though i want to go home to be with my family she i

Dec 19, 2009.was reading another question and it raised a question of my own. i want to breast feed and pump, but on the other question someone said you need the right size shield? can you breast feed and pump if you have little nipples?Come on LO...Lets get a move on!Initial Message Posted by: jkovachie Date: Dec 19, 2009.So I'm due today and there is absolutely no evidence that my LO wants to make her appearance any time soon. I am getting so anxious to meet her. I would love for her to be here before Christmas, but I'm not even sure if that is going to happen now. At this stage I honestly do not care one bit if I am in the hospital on Christmas Day, just as long as my LO arrives soon! So LO, listen up, mommy and daddy are ready to meet you. Come on! herpes and pregnancyherpes and pregnancyMessage #2: herpes and pregnancy Posted by: ang_30 Date: Dec 19, 2009.I have HSV-2 as well and will be induced on my 39th week to check if I have any outbreaks so I can deliver Vaginally because my DOC recommended that I do a C-section at first but after uch researching, I told her that I would prefer not to do a C-Section and thats why she is going to check to make sure I am ok to deliver instead. It's your body and if you want whats best for your baby, you should talk to your OB/GYN and demand that they check you before you go into labor b ecause once your water breaks and if you have shedding, the baby will still be at risk getting it through C-Section.

Better being safe than sorry. HTH and let me know the outcome herpes and pregnancyMessage #3: herpes and pregnancy Posted by: ang_30 Date: Dec 19, 2009.Oh....one more thing.... If you have an outbreak after you aqre 36 weeks, you will have no choice but to get a C-Section because again, your LO will be at higher risk of getting it. So whether you have the baby at 38, 39 or 40 weeks, if you have an outbreak, it take almost 3 weeks for it to clear with shedding.Pregnancy: 3rd TrimesterImportant you're wearing make-up and everything. That's cute. I was thinking the exact same thing tonight. I want to make this the best Christmas ever because it will be the last one we have alone together. It's kind of kindergarden but I made lots of mistletoes out of construction paper and put them up all over the apartment today. I'm going to hop in the shower in a sec and put make-up on and look all pretty so when he comes home from working overtime today we can have a nice romantic evening. Those are things that no one really thinks of, but you will most likely need. A lot of moms also like to have little mittens so LO do esn't scratch their face. More than 1 pacifier if you are planning to use one because LO might not like the first one you try. I was given the option though and with Christmas so close and being 39 weeks and 5 days on Monday, I really just want her out and to be home by Christmas. I also didnt want her B-Day to be ON Christmas, ya know? But I had wanted to go into labor naturally as well... I have had some contractions lately so it might still happen before then I guess....but not getting my hopes up... It will all be ok and I just can't wait to meet my baby girl in 2 DAYS!!!!!! I am nervous about getting pitocin...hoping that the cervadil and breaking my water will jump-start things with-out the pitocin. I hear its harder contractions but a quicker labor...just hope it doesn't result in a C-section or something. Anyways...good luck and happy B-day in advance to both our baby girls!!!!Maternity-itisMaternity-itisMessage #5: Maternity-itis Posted by: Kelseyloxtan Date: Dec 19, 2009.I am being induced on Monday...but was told to come into the hospital Sunday night... So since I work midnights... as of 0730 this morning I on ly have ONE more midnight shift left to work and I am off!!! YAY!!! And when I come back from leave I will be on afternoons so I am so excited...I will get to sleep at night once again!!! (Maybe not so much with LO around...but she will eventually sleep I hope ) Anyways...I am going a little nuts over here.... ONE..... MORE..... DAY..... DON'T.... WANNA..... BE..... HERE..... I hope that someday he realizes what you're going through! You're doing a great job, stay strong!! HBP 2nd day of bed rest Message #2: HBP 2nd day of bed rest Posted by: dwaw02 Date: Dec 19, 2009. Lurking...but I was put on bedrest for hbp with my 1st, so I feel your pain. What ended up working for me (and it was 4w for me) was taking my bp often, especially after I did anything. After a few days, I was able to figure out a good activity level for me, and was able to do a little more. Also, it does get easier after the first few days. You get used to the reduced activity, I guess. Anyway, maybe if you can figure it out, you can wrap a couple of presents, then take a break, the wrap a couple of more, etc. Good luck! Pregnancy: 3rd Trimester lots of pressure/pain Initial Message Posted by: mommeeof3 Date: Dec 19, 2009. hi ladies. so last night, after i got out of the shower, i started getting VERY strong pressure into my pelvis and anal pressure. at first, i just attributed it to being in the warm shower and the baby readjusting. it continued sporatically throughout the night. this morning, hubby and i had sex ... and about 2 hours later, the pressure/pain started coming more regularly. i *think* they might be contractions, but these arent like the contractions that i've previously felt during my last 2 pregnancies. most of the pain/tightening is centralized in the lower half of my stomach, closer to my belly button and pelvic bones ... occasionally i'll get completely pain/tightening throughout my entire stomach, but its mostly lower. i have SEVERE lower anal pressure ... i feel like i have to go but then nothing happens when i try. just wondering if anyone else has experienced pain/pressure/tightening like this in the lower half and if it really was labor? i'm debating calling the dr, but thought i would ask for some opinions here first.....TIA! lots of pressure/pain lots of pressure/pain Message #1: lots of pressure/pain Posted by: fox_rider133 Date: Dec 19, 2009. I am getting the same thing and omg does it hurt! Its like she is trying to break my water! Which I would be stoked! Keep me updated if u talk to your doc!lots of pressure/painMessage #2: lots of pressure/pain Posted by: mommeeof3 Date: Dec 19, 2009.I feel like that too! it feels like shes pushing down and trying to break my water. i was 2cm dialated at my appt on thurs, and now i feel like i am more dialated than that! i'm getting ready to call my dr. pain is coming every 5-8 minutes now!lots of pressure/painMessage #3: lots of pressure/pain Posted by: JenEthan Date: Dec 19, 2009.Wow I'm so jealous Lots of LV coming your way if that's what you guys are experiencing!! Good luck and lots of Labor Vibes!!lots of pressure/painMessage #5: lots of pressure/pain Posted by: mommeeof3 Date: Dec 19, 2009.Just talked to the dr on call and he was a complete JERK! i told him about the pain and pressure and that it feels lke contractions ... he tells me "you're not even 36 weeks yet" i said "i know but this feels like contractions" his response? "well you can come in to be monitored if you want" WTH is that?! i cant believe him!! i'm so upset! he was talking to me like a 5 year old who's never had a baby before.OT: Help!! Ear pain!OT: Help!! Ear pain!Message #2: OT: Help!! Ear pain! Posted by: JenEthan Date: Dec 19, 2009.I recently had an ear infection and although I could hear my ear started bleeding.

It was so odd. I didn't think it was a big deal because it didn't hurt and I knew I had a cold but my doc said it was extremely important that because we're pregnant not to let things like this get out of control and I needed to go to the ER immediately. So I would say you should head on back to urgent care as soon as you possibly can. If you have an outbreak after you are 36 weeks, you will have no choice but to get a C-Section because again, your LO will be at higher risk of getting it. So whether you have the baby at 38, 39 or 40 weeks, if you have an outbreak, it takes almost 3 weeks for it to clear with shedding. Pregnancy: 3rd Trimester Important

So, I am now 35 weeks with twins and at my DA this past week he said I was 1.5 cm dilated and 50% effaced. I was kind of excited until I realized women can sit for weeeeeks at this stage! I know each day I keep my twi ns in is better for them but mommy is BEYOND miserable!!!! So, for those of you who already have children...how quickly did you progress once you started to become dilated/effaced??? They will do a c-section at 38 weeks if I do not go into labor on my own before that, but being 38 weeks preg with twins is probably like being....oh, 45 weeks with a singleton. UGH! TIA!1.5 cm and 50% effaced1.5 cm and 50% effacedMessage #1: 1.5 cm and 50% effaced Posted by: Jcurzon Date: Dec 20, 2009.I think this totally varies from person to person, so take it with a grain of salt, lol. But, with my first PG, I never dilated at all, I was a zero and totally closed, 0% effaced and my water broke at 39 weeks. I had DD the next day vaginally. With this PG, at 36w4d I was dilated to 1 and 60% effaced, I am now 38w2d and still no change. I go back to the OB on wed. hoping I will have dilated to at least a 2, lol! I know some women on this board said they sat at 1 or 2 for several weeks. I am sure your anxious, but it sounds like your body is doing a great job keeping twins in for as long as possible (though I'm sure you are miserable!). My best friend who had twins was not dilated at all at 35 weeks, her water broke I think right before 36 weeks, so you just never know.1.5 cm and 50% effacedMessage #2: 1.5 cm and 50% effaced Posted by: emily8091457 Date: Dec 20, 2009.Well... it is true... you can be dilated and effaced pretty far without going into labor... or... it could go really fast! With DD, though, I began to dilate and efface pretty early. I think I was like 90% effaced for two weeks and I think for the last 2-3 weeks I was being checked I was about 3-4 cm dilated. It was nuts. I have NO idea how she didn't fall out. The doctor kept saying "Her head is RIGHT there" at every weekly appointment. LOL But my water didn't even break until I was right there in labor in the hospital... they were about to break it for me when it popped on its own. But anyway... when I did go into labor (10 days early) it went FAST! Since I was already at 4cm and almost all the way effaced, start to finish my L&D was less than 4 hours. So anyway... I guess long story longer... being 1.5 and 50% is a good start... but it doesn't necessarily mean babies are coming really soon... or they could! That's the big guessing game of having a baby I guess. But... I will say... the more progressed you are when labor starts... I really think things move a lot faster when the time comes! ## bassinnet paypal -ebay -quilt -purse -miniature Digest from Pregnancy: 3rd Trimester

This is a digest of messages posted to: Pregnancy.Pregnancy: 3rd Trimester32-week d/a updateInitial Message Posted by: Kimjj514 Date: Dec 22, 2009.Overall it went well. I'm measuring right on, BP is great, urine looks good, and I'm gaining weight. Yay! Baby was moving all around while she was trying to get a heartbeat. She asked if baby is moving okay, and I said, "she never stops!" lol. She looked at the site from my zofran pump that is infected, and she did not like the looks of it. She was concerned that the Augmentin was not helping. So she told me to go to the front desk to schedule some more appts and that they were going to try to contact the infectious disease doctor that I had seen when I had my PICC line infection. Well, they come back over to me and said that the ID doc was coming in to the OB's office to see me. The ID doctor was so nice and was definitely concerned. He said if I would have waited another week I would have been hospitalized for it, so I'm glad I didn't wait. Anyway, basically he thinks I have MRSA, which is an infection that healthcare workers are at higher risk for. Most healthcare workers are colonized with it but it's usually not a problem unless the MRSA gets into a wound, which is what happened in my case. There are oral medications to treat MRSA, but unfortunately they are not safe during pregnancy. So, I'm back on IV Vancomycin for the next 7 to 10 days. Grrrr!32-week d/a update32-week d/a updateMessage #1: 32-week d/a update Posted by: willandnicole Date: Dec 22, 2009.Oh my goodness!! MRSA is serious stuff! I hope that you recover ok. I can't wait till you have this baby!!! Btw, how did you get rid of the thrush? I think I might have a mild case after a weeks worth of antibiotics. Just wondering if you had some sort of natural remedy or if they gave you something for it. Thanks! 32-week d/a updateMessage #2: 32-week d/a update Posted by: mamafeb11 Date: Dec 22, 2009.I'm sorry to hear that you are back on the IV, but I'm glad they caught it before it got worse. Good thing everything else went ok! 32-week d/a updateMessage #3: 32-week d/a update Posted by: Ki mjj514 Date: Dec 22, 2009.Nicole, I ended up having to take Nystatin mouthwash, which is a swish and swallow used to treat thrush. Luckily I only needed to take it for a couple days, and it resolved pretty quickly. If it's a mild case, it may go away on it's own without treatment. Unfortunately I had it pretty badly and my whole mouth and throat were sore. Try eating some yogurt for a few days and see if that helps. Yogurt has live cultures in it which helps to restore the natural flora in your body, which in turn will hopefully kill off the yeast/thrush. If it doesn't go away or starts to get worse, give your doctor a call.32-week d/a updateMessage #4: 32-week d/a update Posted by: Jess102600 Date: Dec 22, 2009.Oh Kim that really stinks! Both of FIL's parents contracted it, one while being treated in the hospital for another infection and one while in the hospital being treated for complications associated with congestive heart failure. I guess since your immune system has been weakened and because you've spent time in the hospital lately, you were just more susceptible to it. That really stinks! Have they been giving you probiotics while you've been on the antibiotics? I didn't know whether or not they can be taken during pregnancy, but I hope if they can, they've given you some! I was one three courses of antibiotics back to back last year and wound up with a really bad c.diff infection because of it. I would really hate for that to be added to your already very eventful pregnancy! Hope you start feeling better soon At least LO should be here before too long.32-week d/a updateMessage #5: 32-week d/a update Posted by: Ingawahkiki Date: Dec 22, 20

09.:lurking: Oh geez Kim! Things just get worse for you. My brother has MRSA (he's an Army medic and they think he got it his first trip to Iraq) and it's not too fun. He has to be really carefull with cuts and such. Sometimes he gets infections around cuts that cause cysts that need to be drained, cleaned, and packed. I'm so sorry you have it, it's not easy. Also, I have a question about your PICC line, because I don't know many that have them. Where is yours and how are you handling showers? I got one put in a week or so ago because I was in the hospital for a week and a half. It is hyperemesis for me as well and has been an ongoing problem, but it got out of control a couple of weeks ago and I ended up eating nothing for a week...I blew through 9 IVs (one a day because of the Potassium they were pumping me full of), so they put one of those in to start nutritional supplementation. They left it in after getting discharged because they wa nt to make sure it goes a little bit of time without getting that severe again before pulling it. I've heard of them putting it in at your collar bone, but they put a long line from my arm to my chest (which i guess is more common). I have wrapped it with a plastic bag to shower, but I'm affraid I'm going to get it wet anyway. I'm just wondering if you have tips.32-week d/a updateMessage #6: 32-week d/a update Posted by: Kimjj514 Date: Dec 22, 2009.Amie, My PICC is in my right arm, just above the bend of my below. Previously it was in my left arm, but that one became infected and had to be pulled. I've had a PICC line since August some time. I had been in and out of the hospital my entire first trimester. They tried doing IV's at home, but unfortunately my veins just weren't holding up. I was doing home IV fluids from August up until 3 weeks ago, which i s why it's been in for so long. I was actually supposed to have my line pulled yesterday, but they were concerned that I wouldn't tolerate the oral antibiotics I was on. Well, it's a good thing they didn't pull it because now I need the IV antibiotics. I swear this PICC isn't coming out until the baby comes, lol. Anyway, the line you are referring to that is near the collar bone is a central line and much riskier in terms of infection. Plus, it's a bit more invasive to have inserted. Most of the time a PICC line is used unless it's contraindicated. As for showering, the home health company that does my PICC care and supplies my IVs sends me these long gloves that extend up to my shoulder. They are basically like a plastic bag but in the shape of a glove. Then I just use a rubber band or hair tie around the top end of it to keep water from getting in it. It actually works really well, and I've only had it get wet once in the last 4 months of having this PICC line.

DH came to this one so all day he's been getting on me. i cant help it if im not hungry! i guess i should go buy some juice, that should help.34w4d d/a34w4d d/aMessage #1: 34w4d d/a Posted by: Kimjj514 Date: Dec 22, 2009.I didn't have as much of a problem with this when I was pregnant with DD, but during my pregnancy with DS I barely had an appetite during the last few weeks. It's hard to eat when baby is taking up a ll the space and is crowding out your stomach. Then when I'd eat I felt like I couldn't breathe. Try eating small, more frequent meals.34w4d d/aMessage #2: 34w4d d/a Posted by: Soon2bemommyhopefully Date: Dec 22, 2009.try getting some V8 they came out with alot of flavors for people that didn't like the first one teh they came out with (I hate that one) mango orange is my fav. that way you get alittle something more of the things you need but doesn't take up that much room, drink a glass of milk a day too. It's not really how much you eat but the things you are eating that matters. Try snacking on things like green peppers, fruit, ect. like I said its not how much, but what you are eating that really matters.35 week appt - PROGRESS..35 week appt - PROGRESS..Message #4: 35 week appt - PROGRESS..
