
church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by ERivera308 - 2010/01/14 14:31

Hi Ja Re: Catalog The Stitchery is a nice catalog. They are located in Mass. Their address is:
Department S241-2 120 North Meadows Road
388-9662 They send at least four issues a year. Happy Stitching EdithNYC

The Stitches
Medfield, MA 02052

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Lula - 2010/01/14 14:31

I'd like to do needlepoint, but the only needlepoint materials I ever see in the shops are the kind that already have the design worked and you do the background. I would like to do the whole thing myself. Any catalogue suggestions? If you don't have a needlepoint shop in your local area

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Jco55Ly - 2010/01/14 14:31

I have to admit I like a challenge! I am fond of geometrics and fun threads. I like things that have a lot of different stitches and threads so I don't get bored with doing too much of one thing. I do prefer charted pieces like Susan Portra and Jean Hilton but have done some painted too. I do like the higher count canvas like 18 or congress and I do like colored canvas and overdyed. My books are varied and both old and new - currently Brenda Hart and Stitches for Effect. Us needlepointers should be more vocal and let people know how much fun this art can be!!!

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Bill & Brynn Robbins - 2010/01/14 14:31

I have to admit I like a challenge! I am fond of geometrics and fun threads. I like things that have a lot of different stitches and threads so I don't get bored with doing too much of one thing. I do prefer charted pieces like Susan Portra and Jean Hilton but have done some painted too. I do like the higher count canvas like 18 or congress and I do like colored canvas and overdyed. My books are varied and both old and new - currently Brenda Hart and Stitches for Effect. Us needlepointers should be more vocal and let people know how much fun this art can be!!! I haven't done a lot of needlepoint but I believe that beautiful stocking by Erica Wilson in September's The Stitchery magazine will make a convert out of me. I needlepointed a stocking for the DH that turned out quite nice (Christmas before last) but it was nothing like this. This is finally the stocking for me. Who knows, maybe you can count me among your number soon, although I'll never give up my linen. Brynn

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by FlossCause - 2010/01/14 14:31

new - currently Brenda Hart and Stitches for Effect. Us needlepointers should be more vocal and let people know how much fun this art can be!!! I haven't done a lot of needlepoint but I believe that beautiful stocking by Erica Wilson in September's The Stitchery magazine will make a convert out of me. I needlepointed a stocking for the DH that turned out quite nice (Christmas before last) but it was nothing like this. This is finally the stocking for me. Who knows, maybe you can count me among your number soon, although I'll never give up my linen. Brynn This is indeed a beautiful stocking. The colors (golden pears and blue accents) are so unique for the season. I was very close to taking the pattern in to my favorite needlepoint haunt and getting all the supplies. I've been so indulgent of late, though, that I decided to hold off. The idea keeps reawakening each time someone mentions the design though. I've gotten so much done on my needlepoint church pew project, that I may be able to justify a reward. ;-) (Waving all ten fingers in towards body to convey appeal for validation here). Nova Visualize Whirled Peas

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Jerome Culik & Martina Culik Moore - 2010/01/14 14:31

I have to admit I like a challenge! I am fond of geometrics and fun threads... I do prefer charted pieces like Susan Portra and Jean Hilton but have done some painted too. I do like the higher count canvas like 18 or congress and I do like colored canvas and overdyed. My books are varied and both old and new... I haven't done a lot of needlepoint but I believe that beautiful stocking by Erica Wilson in September's The Stitchery magazine will make a convert out of me... Brynn This is indeed a beautiful stocking... I've gotten so much done on my needlepoint church pew project, that I may be able to justify a reward. ;-) (Waving all ten fingers in towards body to convey appeal for validation here). Nova
Visualize Whirled Peas

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by ThreadBndr - 2010/01/14 14:31

I've gotten so much done on my needlepoint church pew project, that I may be able to justify a reward. ;-) (Waving all ten fingers in towards body to convey appeal for validation here). Nova Dear, If you get new stash stuff for the pew, how much do I get for the never-ending choir banner?????!!!!!! Hummmmmmmh - I want pears and one of Sharon's pens and one of Lulu's little russian dolls and Oh well, back to the %&#*$ $ hollyhocks - I thought I was almost done with them , then I advanced the thing and there are a WHOLE bunch more of them in the next section tooooooo!!!! (Wail!!!!) OH well, Karla ThreadBndr @ AOL.com

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Lula - 2010/01/14 14:31

Hi Needlepointers, Keep talking about new and exciting projects because the prospect of a new project keeps me motivated to finish the current one! Martina I have made progress this year

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by John or Jenn Ridley - 2010/01/14 14:31

PS Nova: what is the meaning behind the signature tag line visualize whirled peas ? I'm not Nova, but... say it out loud, fairly quickly. Unless you have a very strong regional accent, it should sound quite a bit like visualize world peace . jenn

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Nan - 2010/01/14 14:31

This is indeed a beautiful stocking. The colors (golden pears and blue accents) are so unique for the season. I was very close to taking the pattern in to my favorite needlepoint haunt and getting all the supplies. I've been so indulgent of late, though, that I decided to hold off. The idea keeps reawakening each time someone mentions the design though. I've gotten so much done on my needlepoint church pew project, that I may be able to justify a reward. ;-) (Waving all ten fingers in towards body to convey appeal for validation here). Nova

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Ellen Hartman - 2010/01/14 14:31 threads. I like things that have a lot of different stitches and threads so I don't get bored with doing too much of one thing. I do prefer charted pieces like Susan Portra and Jean Hilton but have done some painted too. I do like the higher count canvas like 18 or congress and I do like colored canvas and overdyed. My books are varied and both old and new - currently Brenda Hart and Stitches for Effect. Us needlepointers should be more vocal and let people know how much fun this art can be!!!

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by NETBONNIE - 2010/01/14 14:31

Needlepoint becomes an compulsion at a certain point where I can't stop stitching no matter what!! It's usually about half way through a design when major areas have been stitched in or some new effect achieved

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by FlossCause - 2010/01/14 14:31

Took a short bus ride from my office to In Stitches needlepoint shop in Portland OR. Surprise! Lula's one of their featured artists. The display was totally enchanting. Christmas in July is the theme; Lula's art is prominently and tastefully displayed in a huge glass storefront window set into the wall of a heavily travelled (and cool!) passageway in the mini mall. Such a delight to find on a sweltering day! Nova Visualize Whirled Peas

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by FlossCause - 2010/01/14 14:31

Subject: Re: Where have all the needlepointers gone? From: Nan <han...@coastside.net Date: Tue, 29 Jul 1997 12:32:16 +0000 Nova, If there's one thing I know how to do, it's tell someone else what I think they ought to do, so: all your work on the church pew project does, indeed, validate any little desire your heart can come up with. You deserve a reward. Go for it. (You can pay me later...:-)) Nan Aw, thanks Nan, I knew you were going to be a valuable asset to this group! You can count on me to support your next inexplicable whim for more stash. Nova Visualize Whirled Peas

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by FlossCause - 2010/01/14 14:31

Dear, If you get new stash stuff for the pew, how much do I get for the never-ending choir banner?????!!!!!! Hummmmmmmh - I want pears and one of Sharon's pens and one of Lulu's little russian dolls and Oh well, back to the %&#$*$ hollyhocks - I thought I was almost done with them , then I advanced the thing and there are a WHOLE bunch more of them in the next section toooooooo!!!! (Wail!!!!) OH well, Karla ThreadBndr @ AOL.com Let's see, just how will you be rewarded for your valiant efforts? Umm, my guess is a brand new eyeglass prescription for all the hours you've spent peering at that interminable banner? (Not fair, I know, but it seems that's what I get every year.) Keep on stitchin' on! Nova Visualize Whirled Peas

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Gloria Armstrong - 2010/01/14 14:31

I have to admit I like a challenge! I am fond of geometrics and fun threads. I like things that have a lot of different stitches and threads so I don't get bored with doing too much of one thing. I do prefer charted pieces like Susan Portra and Jean Hilton but have done some painted too. I do like the higher count canvas like 18 or congress and I do like colored canvas and overdyed. My books are varied and both old and new - currently Brenda Hart and Stitches for Effect. Us needlepointers should be more vocal and let people know how much fun this art can be!!! I enjoy needlepoint as well. I have been unable to indulge the time for needle work for several years now but am getting back to it and really see how much I have missed it. Once I am 'warmed up' again, and have my old books, etc. back in order, perhaps we could discuss our holdings?? Gloria Armstrong g...@ra.msstate.edu

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Jco55Ly - 2010/01/14 14:31

of weeks ago and it looks awful! I am doing mine as an evening bag - avoiding framing altogether. I also left some of the background unstitched and like the effect.

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Mmeindia - 2010/01/14 14:31

Hi all, I'm a new poster to this group but I have read of Genny Morrow on AOL. I would love to find the book for Nova but none of the stores I frequent (in NJ) carry books like this, nor do the regular bookstores. Does anyone have any idea where I could find it? Thanks! Nancy

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Bill & Judi Kaufman - 2010/01/14 14:31

AOL. I would love to find the book for Nova but none of the stores I frequent (in NJ) carry books like this, nor do the regular bookstores. Does anyone have any idea where I could find it? Thanks! Nancy

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Paige McGhee - 2010/01/14 14:31 went on a Baltimore Shop a Thon two weeks ago and I saw the book in one

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Judith Truly - 2010/01/14 14:31

Have you tried the Needlewoman East? She has that chart you are speaking of and most all the threads for it, I went shopping with some of my ANG group and we had a ball!! ONE of my favorite shops. The address is: 809-C W. Broad Street, Falls Church Va PHone number is: 1-703-241-0316 (area code may have changed).

=====

church pew pens Where have all the needlepointers gone?

Posted by Janet M. Perry - 2010/01/14 14:31

Hi all, I'm a new poster to this group but I have read of Genny Morrow on AOL. I would love to find the book for Nova but none of the stores I frequent (in NJ) carry books like this, nor do the regular bookstores. Does anyone have any idea where I could find it? Nancy